

About billing for your enterprise

In this article

About billing for your enterprise

Further reading

You can view billing information for your enterprise account on GitHub.com.

About billing for your enterprise

Each user on your GitHub Enterprise Server instance consumes a seat on your license. GitHub bills monthly for the total number of seats consumed on your license.

For invoiced GitHub Enterprise customers, GitHub bills through an enterprise account on GitHub.com. Each invoice includes a single bill charge for all of your paid GitHub.com services and any GitHub Enterprise Server instances. For more information about licensing, usage, and invoices, see the following in the GitHub Enterprise Cloud documentation.

- "About per-user pricing"
- "Viewing the subscription and usage for your enterprise account"
- "Managing invoices for your enterprise"

Administrators for your enterprise account on GitHub.com can access and manage billing for the enterprise. For more information, see "Roles in an enterprise" in the GitHub Enterprise Cloud documentation.

GitHub Enterprise customers with no enterprise account on GitHub.com can view invoices and payment history on the GitHub Enterprise website. To upgrade to GitHub Enterprise or to get started with an enterprise account, contact GitHub's Sales team.

Further reading

- "About enterprise accounts"

Legal