

Setting up your project for GitHub Codespaces

You can configure GitHub Codespaces for the specific requirements of your project. Every time you create a codespace from your repository your working environment will have everything you need.

Adding a dev container configuration to your repository

Introduction to dev containers

Setting up a Node.js project for GitHub Codespaces

Setting up a C# \(.NET\) project for GitHub Codespaces

Setting up a Java project for GitHub Codespaces

Setting up a PHP project for GitHub Codespaces

Setting up a Python project for GitHub Codespaces

Configuring dev containers

Setting a minimum specification for codespace machines

Adding features to a devcontainer.json file

Automatically opening files in the codespaces for a repository

Specifying recommended secrets for a repository

Setting up your repository for GitHub Codespaces

Facilitating quick creation and resumption of codespaces

Setting up a template repository for GitHub Codespaces

Legal