

Why wasn't my application to Global Campus for teachers approved?

In this article

Unclear proof of affiliation documents

Using an academic email with an unverified domain

Using an academic email from a school with lax email policies

Non-student applying for Student Developer Pack

Further reading

Review common reasons that applications for GitHub Global Campus are not approved and learn tips for reapplying successfully.

Tip: As a student or faculty member at an accredited educational institution, you can apply for GitHub Global Campus. GitHub Global Campus is a portal that allows the GitHub Education Community to access their education benefits—all in one place! The GitHub Global Campus portal includes access to the GitHub Education Community, industry tools used by professional developers, events, Campus TV content, GitHub Classroom, GitHub Community Exchange, GitHub Student Developer Pack, and other exclusive features to help students and teachers shape the next generation of software development.

Before applying for an individual discount, check if your learning community is already partnered with us as a GitHub Campus Program school. For more information, see "About GitHub Campus Program."

Unclear proof of affiliation documents

If the image you uploaded doesn't clearly identify your current employment with a school or university, you must reapply and upload another image of your faculty ID or employment verification letter with clear information.

Note: PDF files are not supported and you cannot upload them as proof of affiliation.

Using an academic email with an unverified domain

If your academic email address has an unverified domain, we may require further proof of your academic status. When you reapply, upload a different image than the one you included in your first application. Make sure that at least one date that demonstrates your current academic status is clearly visible.

Note: PDF files are not supported and you cannot upload them as proof of affiliation.

Using an academic email from a school with lax email policies ↗

If alumni and retired faculty of your school have lifetime access to school-issued email addresses, we may require further proof of your academic status. When you reapply, upload a different image than the one you included in your first application. Make sure that at least one date that demonstrates your current academic status is clearly visible.

Note: PDF files are not supported and you cannot upload them as proof of affiliation.

If you have other questions or concerns about the school domain, please ask your school IT staff to contact us.

Non-student applying for Student Developer Pack ↗

Teachers are not eligible for the partner offers that come with the GitHub Student Developer Pack. When you reapply, make sure that you choose Faculty to describe your academic status.

Further reading ↗

- "Apply to GitHub Global Campus as a teacher"

Legal

© 2023 GitHub, Inc. Terms Privacy Status Pricing Expert services Blog