In this article

- About releases of GitHub Enterprise Server
- Releases of GitHub Enterprise Server

GitHub releases new versions of GitHub Enterprise Server regularly. You can review supported versions, see deprecation dates, and browse documentation for the release you've deployed.

About releases of GitHub Enterprise Server

GitHub Enterprise Server is constantly improving, with new functionality and bug fixes introduced through feature and patch releases. GitHub supports the four most recent feature releases. For more information, see "About upgrades to new releases."

You can see what's new for each release in the release notes, and you can view administrator and user documentation for all releases here on GitHub Docs. When you read the documentation, make sure to select the version that reflects your product. For more information, see "About versions of GitHub Docs."

Releases of GitHub Enterprise Server

GitHub provides documentation for both supported and deprecated versions of GitHub Enterprise Server, but does not maintain or update the documentation for deprecated versions.

For more information about the latest release, see the GitHub Enterprise website.

Deprecated developer documentation

GitHub hosted developer documentation for GitHub Enterprise Server on a separate site until the 2.17 release. GitHub continues to provide developer documentation for version 2.16 and earlier, but does not maintain or update the documentation.
